THE SECRETARY-GENERAL VISITS ASIA-PACIFIC AND EUROPE

Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali has completed a three-week tour during which he paid official visits to Indonesia, Australia, New Zealand and Fiji. Before returning to New York, he travelled to Moscow and Paris for observances of the fiftieth anniversary of the end of the Second World War.

Arriving in Jakarta on 22 April, the Secretary-General discussed a number of topics with President Soeharto, including Indonesia's regional and international role, the question of East Timor and the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons (NPT). At the ceremony commemorating the fortieth anniversary of the Asian-African Conference, the Secretary-General underscored the importance of the Non-Aligned Movement, in which Indonesia has played a pivotal role, and requested Member States to "become active partners in the creation of the world of the twenty-first century".

The Secretary-General's five-day visit to Australia, beginning on 25 April, included stops in Sydney, Melbourne and Canberra. The Secretary-General met with government leaders including: Prime Minister Paul Keating to discuss Australia's role in the United Nations system and the Asia-Pacific region; and Minister of Foreign Affairs, Senator Gareth Evans, to discuss reform of the United Nations and peace-keeping.

At the opening of the Global Cultural Diversity Conference in Sydney, the Secretary-General said: "The raison d'etre of the United Nations is to foster the integrity of cultures and, upon this basis, to promote information, dialogue, understanding and cooperation among the peoples of all the world's diverse cultures". Following the session, he was presented with the Australia Post United Nations Fiftieth Anniversary Commemorative Stamp.

The Secretary-General met with the Australian Red Cross and participated in a forum on "Dignity for Women in War", underscoring the impact of war on women.

He also delivered the keynote address at a Conference entitled "Great Expectations: The United Nations at Fifty", where he emphasized the need to seize the UN's Fiftieth Anniversary to embark upon a new exploration of global cooperation. Before Leaving Australia, the Secretary-General addressed the National Press Club.

UNIC Jakarta and UNIC Sydney both provided the logistical and media support to the Secretary-General, including the transmission of daily radio feeds to Headquarters.

The Secretary-General then paid a four-day visit to New Zealand, arriving on 30 April. He met with Governor-General Dame Catherine Tizard and then attended a cabinet meeting chaired by Prime Minister James Bolger to discuss New Zealand's role in the United Nations and aspects of disarmament.

The Secretary-General also praised New Zealand's role in peace-keeping and its active participation in the work of the Security Council over the past two years.

Arriving in Fiji on 3 May for a two-day visit, the Secretary-General held talks with President Sir Kamisese Mara and Prime Minister Sitiveni Ligamamada Rabuka as well as members of the Cabinet on Fiji's active role in peace-keeping, NPT and the law of the sea. The Secretary-General paid tribute to Fijian soldiers who have died in UN peace-keeping service.

The Secretary-General then travelled to Moscow to participate in the fiftieth anniversary of the end of the Second World War. Meeting with President Boris Yeltsin of the Russian Federation on 8 May, the Secretary-General expressed his gratitude for Russia's support of UN peace-keeping operations. Prior to leaving, the Secretary-General met with staff members at UNIC Moscow, where he was presented with a "mini-Blue Book" based on the volume The UN and Non-Nuclear Proliferation, one of the Secretary-General's Blue Books the UNIC had translated into Russian.

In Paris on 11 May, the Secretary-General was praised by France's Foreign Minister Alain Juppé for his leadership and was assured of France's continued support for the UN. He also met with President François Mitterrand and senior UN officials to discuss peace-keeping efforts in the former Yugoslavia. Before returning to New York, the Secretary-General met with: President Pascal Lissouba of Congo; President Paul Biya of Cameroon and President El Hadj Omar Bongo of Gabon (Press releases SG/T/1950-1964 and SG/SM/5617-5628).

INFORMATION COMMITTEE COMMENDS DPI

DPI received strong support from the Committee on Information, meeting at Headquarters from 1 to 12 May. In particular, the Committee complimented Assistant Secretary-General Samir Sanbar on the "new spirit of partnership, cooperation and transparency" he had brought to the Department.

In addressing the substantive issues before the Committee, all speakers acknowledged the dynamic power of information in bringing the message of the United Nations — peace, democracy and development — to the world audience. In addition, they expressed their belief that communication was an important tool that could help all peoples attain their political, socio-economic and cultural objectives, unite them in awareness and aspiration, and shape the world of tomorrow.

All speakers welcomed the strengthening by the Department of the role of United Nations Information Centres, which was greatly enhancing UN information activities throughout the world, in part by translating information materials into local languages. The Committee also emphasized the importance of Centres as focal points for communications between the UN and both its Member States and the media.

Speakers in the Committee also complimented DPI on innovative approaches it had taken, its professionalism and the pioneering role it had played in the electronic dissemination of information. Committee members gained first-hand knowledge of the UN's increasing presence on the "information superhighway" at a DPI demonstration of its database on the Internet, its "Home Page" project on the World Wide Web and its successful pilot satellite transmission of the UN video programme "Year in Review". DPI also demonstrated the improved electronic access to materials in the Dag Hammarskjöld Library.

Along with multi-media expansion, all speakers commended the Department's role in promoting the messages of UN international conferences on economic and social issues, in particular the World Summit for Social Development. Reiterating the integral relationship between peace and development, Committee members pointed to publications such as

Agenda for Peace and Agenda for Development as important information priorities of the Organization.

Mr. Sanbar, thanking the Committee for its guidance, support and cooperation, stressed the importance of building partnerships, and said his priority as head of DPI had been "to strengthen United Nations information programmes, polish the tools of programme delivery and find innovative ways to assimilate technological advances".

In the closing session, the Committee adopted its report containing two draft resolutions for consideration by the General Assembly later this year. The first of the two resolutions concerns information in the service of humanity by which all countries would be urged to reaffirm their commitment to the principles of freedom of the press and information. In this spirit, the Committee, in observation of World Press Freedom Day on 3 May, paid tribute to slain or imprisoned journalists.

The second resolution, regarding the UN's information activities and policies, would have the Assembly recognize the importance of DPI's involvement at the planning stage of peace-keeping and other field operations to ensure effective day-to-day functioning of the information components of the missions. In addition, the Committee encouraged DPI to seek ways to improve world-wide access to UN Radio as one of the most cost-effective and far-reaching media. The resolution would also have the Assembly request DPI to resume publication of Development Forum, or bring out at the earliest a system-wide publication on development issues.

Reaffirming the importance Member States attach to UN Information Centres, the Committee recognized the pivotal role of Centres in promoting both the work of the UN system and a positive image of the Organization.

Also, in accordance with the principle of geographic location, the Committee elected the following officers for 1995-1996: Ivan V. Maximov (Bulgaria), Chairman; Alejandro H. Nieto (Argentina), Minhaj Barna (Pakistan), and Jose Alberto de Sousa (Portugal), Vice-Chairmen; and Fateh Zeghib (Algeria), Rapporteur (Press releases PI/885-PI/894; Documents A/AC.198/1995/L.1-L.3).

STATES PARTIES EXTEND NPT

The 1995 Review and Extension Conference held at Headquarters from 17 April to 12 May, decided, in action taken without a vote, to extend indefinitely the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons (NPT). The Conference also adopted the principles and objectives for nuclear non-proliferation and disarmament and a text for strengthening the Treaty-review process. In addition, States parties called for the creation of a zone free of nuclear and other weapons of mass destruction in the Middle East.

Some States expressed concern because the extension was not tied to a time-bound programme of nuclear disarmament; others felt the Treaty negotiations should not be held hostage to specific disarmament agreements. The existing Treaty calls for all 178 States parties to comply with the International Atomic Energy Agency safeguards (Press releases DC/2491-2513). DPI, in cooperation with the Centre for Disarmament Affairs, issued a Conference press kit containing background information on the Treaty (DPI/1654; E/F).

CONGRESS ON CRIME PREVENTION CONDEMNS TERRORISM

The Ninth United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders, held in Cairo from 29 April to 8 May, concluded by adopting a resolution condemning terrorist acts and organized crime. Some States had wanted the resolution to make a clear distinction between acts of self-defence or national liberation and terrorism.

In another resolution, the Congress, which is held every five years, asked States for their views on the elaboration of new international instruments against transnational crime. Such a treaty might cover international cooperation at the investigative, prosecutorial and judicial levels, and the prevention and control of money laundering.

Other action was taken regarding the proliferation of firearms, deliberate environmental damage, corruption of public officials and violence against women and children (Press releases SOC/CP/140-159, DPI/1594 and DPI/1647; E/F/A).

COMMISSION ENDS THREE-WEEK SESSION

The Commission on Sustainable Development concluded its third session (New York, 11-28 April) with a decision to establish an intergovernmental panel whose tasks include devising strategies for combating deforestation and ensuring effective implementation of the Statement of Forest Principles agreed upon at the 1992 UN Conference on Environment and Development (UNCED) in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

In addition, the Commission took action on issues ranging from financial resources and mechanisms to its future work programme on changing consumption and production patterns, including: combating poverty; demographic dynamics and sustainability; and trade, environment and sustainable development.

The Commission also called on Governments to develop national plans for reducing the level of lead in gasoline and on wealthier countries to help developing States obtain the technology needed to make the transition to lead-free products. Valuable as tourist attractions and habitats for a variety of species, coral reefs will be protected under the Coral Reef Initiative, which calls for the protection and sustainable management of coral reef eco-systems (See also UN in Action: Coral Reefs in Barbados, Programme no.380).

In other action, Governments were called upon to improve access to information relative to sustainable development and promote scientific education and training opportunities. Developed nations were asked to facilitate the financing of programmes and projects and increase the amount of official development assistance made available to developing States, consistent with commitments made at UNCED. The Commission also concluded that steps should be taken to liberalize trade and open markets.

The Commission

Established in February 1993 to ensure effective follow-up to UNCED, the Commission consists of 53 Member States that meet annually to review relevant information provided by Governments. Previous sessions were held in June 1993 and May 1994.

UNCED Agreements

Agenda 21 — A comprehensive strategy for global action leading to improved living standards for all while carefully managing ecosystems.

Rio Declaration on Environment and Development— Supports Agenda 21 by defining the rights and responsibilities of States.

Statement of Forest Principles— Non-legally binding guidelines for the sustainable development of forests, including such practices as reforestation and forest conservation.

(Press releases DPI/1276 and DPI/SD/1686).

In addition, it was agreed that countries could move closer to their sustainable development goals by involving major groups, particularly women, in decision-making at all levels. Governments would also have to garner public support for sustainable development programmes by working with local institutions and authorities.

The Commission also called upon Governments to develop a set of indicators against which progress in sustainable development could be measured. Each indicator measures human activities which cause environmental damage, the severity of the problem and the actions that can be taken to reduce or prevent the damage. The task is a complex one in that more work is needed to fully integrate these dimensions and to understand and explain the linkages between them.

At the conclusion of the session, States that have not yet signed important agreements initiated at UNCED, such as the Conventions on Biological Diversity, Climate Change and Desertification, were urged to do so.

Two working groups set up by the Commission are to meet prior to next year's session: one will assess progress made in protecting the atmosphere, oceans and seas; the other will look at finance for sustainable development and changing patterns of production and consumption. Because the major cause of continued deterioration of the global environment is unsustainable production and consumption, the Commission recommended that the 1986 UN Guidelines for Consumer Protection (ST/ESA/170) be expanded to incorporate guidelines for sustainable consumption. (Press releases ENV/DEV/320-339 and DPI/SD/1699; Documents E/CN.17/1995/L.1-L.13 and Sustaining the Future Series DPI/SD/1660-1665).

PANEL SUGGESTS MEDIA STRATEGIES

A panel of media experts, chaired by Assistant Secretary-General Samir Sanbar, on 27 April, concluded that the media could be encouraged to cover sustainable development, even though it was a difficult concept to report.

In his opening remarks, Maurice Strong, Secretary-General of the 1992 United Nations Conference on Environment and Development, said the relevance of sustainable development should be made clear to the media, adding that "if the media were not interested in our agendas, there would be no significant public support for them".

David Lascelles, Natural Resources Editor of the Financial Times of London, said sustainable development would get greater coverage if it had more of a business imperative and carried little ethical implications in the message. He added that news organizations had to "write about things that were newsworthy, not just worthy of being in the news". Ms. Barbara Pyle, Vice-President for Environmental Programmes at CNN International, encouraged advocates to: help the media understand the issues and realize their stake in it; make themselves more accessible to journalists; build partnerships with NGOs and enlist a dynamic spokesperson.

Michael Keats, World Desk Editor at Inter Press Service (IPS), said: "IPS has a proven track record making a news story out of sustainable development by linking it to: women, indigenous rights, biotechnology, agriculture and health".

Ms. Blair Palese, Chief Press Officer at Greenpeace International, London, underscored the importance of raising public awareness of the issues through the media by linking events that otherwise would go reported as isolated incidents. She also suggested alternative ways to reach the public such as via the Internet, CD-ROM and interactive videos.

The discussion concluded with a presentation by Ingebright Jensens of JBR Rehlamebyra, a Norwegian advertising firm, who explained the strategy behind an advertising campaign the firm designed to reduce consumption in wealthy, consumer-oriented countries.

GLOBAL WARMING

Governments meeting from 28 March to 7 April in Berlin, Germany, at the Conference of the Parties to the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change, agreed to launch new talks aimed at strengthening the commitments of developed countries to reduce greenhouse gas emissions. Such gases contribute to global warming.

The agreement, known as the "Berlin Mandate", concludes that the present commitments to reduce emissions to 1990 levels by the year 2000, made under the Earth Summit's Climate Change Convention, are not adequate. The new talks, scheduled for completion by 1997, will consider setting more stringent targets for reducing emissions within specified time-frames, such as by the years 2005, 2010, and 2020 (Convention on Climate Change DPI/1300).

WORLD ENVIRONMENT DAY

DPI, UNEP and a number of UN agencies will host a panel discussion at UN Headquarters entitled "Women and the Environment" on the occasion of World Environment Day, 5 June. The panel will focus on the actual and potential role of women in environment and sustainable development. UNEP has sent UNICs and UNDP field offices an information kit to help promote the day, which includes: a poster, cards designed by children and the latest issue of Our Planet, dedicated to World Environment Day. The theme of this year's commemoration is "We the People United for a Better Environment".

DESERTIFICATION AND DROUGHT

Many countries, particularly those in Africa, are experiencing serious drought and/or desertification. World Day to Combat Desertification and Drought, observed on 17 June, was established to draw attention to the issues and encourage international cooperation in resolving the problem. UN agencies are planning a variety of activities to raise public awareness, including seminars, lectures, press conferences and distribution of copies of the 1992 Convention on Desertification (DPI/SD/1576).

PASSPORT TO THE FUTURE

The UN50 secretariat launched the "Passport to the Future Project" in San Francisco on 15 May. Students aged 7 to 14 will place their photo inside the document, fill in details about themselves and sign the Passport. After a brief lesson about the work of the UN, students will pledge to do specific activities in the areas of environment, human rights and peace. Each pledge commits the student to one day of action and should be signed by a witness. Next, young people depict their vision of the future through drawing or written description. The Passport also contains a fact file and information on "Our World" today to encourage discussion. Students then sign the Passport and forward pledges to the sponsoring NGO.

UNICs and UNISs can help promote the "Passport to the Future" project by encouraging NGOs to contact schools, cover Passport printing costs and maintain pledge records. By taking on this project, NGOs will be able to expand their outreach as well as include youths in their membership. Further details may be obtained from Ms. Jane Shorrall at the UN50 Secretariat Tel. (212) 963-5188; Fax (212) 963-1185.

Global Teach-In

With a "Global Teach-In" scheduled to coincide with the UN's Fiftieth Anniversary commemoration in October, UNIC New Delhi and UNIC Tokyo are among the first to report plans to translate the educational kits into local languages. UNICs interested in translating the kits into local languages may contact Ms. Carolyn Schuler Uluc at Tel. (212) 963-1072; Fax (212) 963-1185.

UN50 AND UNICS

As momentum gains in many countries to commemorate the UN Fiftieth Anniversary, Centres are working closely with UN50 National Committees, NGOs, educational institutions and others to generate a better understanding of the work of the UN. More than 70 National Committees have been established with the help of UNICs. Recently, new committees were established in Brazil, Burundi, Eritrea, Libya, Myanmar, Nepal, Panama and Zimbabwe.

Taking the UN to the People. UN poster exhibits at a busy Lisbon shopping centre.

Centres have organized a number of UN50 exhibits. In March, UNIC New Delhi opened an exhibit entitled "The United Nations and India". In April, UNIC Mexico, in collaboration with El Colegio de Mexico, mounted an exhibit of the UN Charter at the Centre's premises. In May, three UN50 exhibits took place: UNIC Lisbon organized, with co-sponsors Diario de Noticias and Fonte Nova Shopping Centre, an exhibition of UN posters and public information in Portuguese; UNIC Harare mounted a historical photo exhibition, which included the screening of UN system videos at the National Gallery in Harare; and the UN Office in Azerbaijan opened a UN poster exhibit attended by the Minister of Foreign Affairs. UNIC London is assisting UN50 sponsor GoldStar in setting up the June "Global Future Exhibition".

In addition to exhibits, UNICs have participated in seminars and other opportunities for discussion about the work of the UN. In March, the UNIC Paris Information Officer participated in a debate organized by the Public Library of the Centre George Pompidou on the theme "The Ad Hoc International Tribunals of the UN". The UNIC Rome Director, participating in a seminar entitled "Towards Transnational Democracy: The Future of the United Nations", talked about UN efforts to promote democracy.

Active media outreach is also under way. Recently, UNIC Manila obtained broad exposure for the UN50 Anniversary event when Manila's leading weekly magazine Philippine Panorama gave front-page coverage to the popular evening photograph of the Secretariat building, that shows illuminated lights spelling out "UN50". UNIC Jakarta successfully placed a detailed article in the Indonesia Times entitled, "The United Nations at 50: Recognizing the Achievements". Also, UNIC Port of Spain arranged with the Sunday Guardian children's magazine to publicize UN50 to the children of the Caribbean.

Many Centres have dedicated their newsletters to observance of UN50. UNIC Dhaka reports that it will now publish its monthly newsletter Dateline UN in English. UNIS Bangkok has included a section entitled "UN 50th Anniversary Update" in its Asia Pacific newsletter, and UNIC Windhoek co-published a special UN50 Bulletin with UNDP, UNFPA, and UNICEF.

CRIME CONGRESS

UNICs initiated special public information outreach activities for the Ninth United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime and Treatment of Offenders, held in Cairo from 29 April to 8 May.UNIC Cairo translated materials into Arabic and coordinated local media activities. UNIC Lusaka organized a one-day workshop for senior police, prison and judiciary officers. UNIC Rome and UNIC Tokyo translated materials into local lanuages and widely disseminated the information to the national media. Many UNICs and UNISs in all regions provided clippings and local media coverage reports directly to the DPI Spokesman at the Conference.

WOMEN

Looking ahead to the Fourth World Conference on Women, UNIC Maseru recently participated in a workshop on the theme "Gender and Sustainable Human Development". The organizers, WHO and the Ministry of Health and Social Welfare, will take this workshop to the small villages of Lesotho, making it truly a grass-roots effort; UNIC will provide information materials for the rural workshops.

UNIC Manama recently promoted the Conference on Women and International Women's Day by disseminating the Secretary-General's message, press releases and DPI publications on the Conference to Gulf Area media. In addition, the Centre Director was a guest on the radio talk show "Good Morning Bahrain" and Bahrain Television Channel 55.

PRESS FREEDOM

In observance of World Press Freedom Day on 3 May, UNIC Panama organized a forum on "Freedom of the Press" at the University of Panama. UNIC Lima successfully placed stories in Peru's three main newspapers: El Comercio, La Republica and Expreso, highlighting the importance of freedom of the press.

OTHER ACTIVITIES

A number of translations were undertaken by UNICs, including: Agenda for Development into Portuguese by UNIC Lisbon; the Secretary-General's speech entitled "Democracy, Media and the UN" into Spanish by UNIC Santa Fé de Bogota; and the Secretary-General's article on "The Landmine Crisis" into Shona by UNIC Harare.

In Europe, UNIC Copenhagen participated in a meeting of Danish peace-keepers, and spoke on cultural diversity in the work of the UN at a gathering of Norwegian educators. In a recent development, UNIC Rome now serves San Marino as well as Italy, the Holy See and Malta.

UNIC Sana'a focused attention on biodiversity and development by arranging for a TV crew to visit the Island of Socotra to assess the needs of the remote population and investigate environmental preservation. UNIS Amman reports that Jordan's Minister for Higher Education, Rateb Saoud, and the Rector of the United Nations University (UNU), Under-Secretary-General Heitor Gurgulino de Souza, agreed to set up the first UNU institution in the Middle East. The UNU Leadership Academy, Amman, adds itself to the list of six UNU research and training centres worldwide.

NEW PRINT MATERIALS

DPI/IPRA AWARDS

Each year, DPI, in conjunction with the International Public Relations Association (IPRA), recognizes excellence in public relations campaigns that address priority issues of the United Nations. The winner of the 1994 United Nations Grand Award was Body Shop Canada, for its intensive national campaign to stop violence against women. Honourable mentions went to: "Rama Cansuyu" (Lifeblood Project), for its environmental success story of the Izmir Bird Paradise, sponsored by Turkish Unilever-Rama Group; and Kentucky Fried Chicken/Drug Abuse Resistance Education (DARE), for its DARE to Make a Difference public service announcement contest in the United States.

DPI SURFS THE INTERNET

DPI took a bold new step on the information superhighway with the 26 June launch of the World Wide Web (WWW) UN Home Page. WWW is another tool that provides users access to the world's largest network of computers, the Internet. More than 30 million Internet users can obtain information about the UN in textual form and many of them have the technology to access text integrated with graphics, photos and audio files. The address of the UN Home Page is http://www.un.org.

The UN Home Page on WWW contains basic information about the UN, such as its membership, principal bodies and peace-keeping operations. By "clicking on", or selecting, any of the menu items, users can access additional information on the desired topic. Other main categories on the UN Home Page are: news, including press releases and updates; documents; conferences; publications; and audio/visual, including photos of the 26 June UN50 Commemorative Ceremony held in San Francisco, transmitted electronically and posted on the same day. High-end users were able to access live audio and video of the ceremony by connecting to the Multicast Backbone (MBONE), supporting advanced functions and high speeds. The event will be stored as a series of multi-media pages on the WWW.

The UN Home Page also contains information on: UN50, including the newsletter, a list of special anniversary events and programmes and a pictorial history of the UN; the UN online tour, highlighting the stops made on the Headquarters Guided Tour; and other sources, including a list of UN depository libraries and UNICs and UNISs around the world. DPI also will establish a link to the multi-media catalogue of the July exhibit "Dialogues of Peace" in Geneva as well as Web sites of other members of the UN family of organizations.

The UN Home Page is already linked to the UNDP Gopher, providing access to 25,000 text files currently placed or "uploaded" on that system. The DPI Dissemination and Communications Unit reports that the UNDP Gopher, which is updated several times a day and accessed an average of 16,000 times daily, will continue to be maintained because some users cannot access the Internet through WWW. On the other hand, WWW is more visually stimulating and easier to navigate by clicking on key words rather than searching through menus. WWW, therefore, is expected to heighten interest in the UN, particularly among young people who are captivated by this new technology.

The public can easily "download" information from WWW to files on their home computers. All that is required is a PC with a modem, Windows software and connection to an Internet provider. Users who do not have access to the Web can obtain UN information by dialing the UNDP Gopher at gopher.undp.org. Those who have E-mail can send a message to gopher@undp.org to receive instructions. The UN Home Page is the result of a collaborative effort among many UN Offices.

FWCW JOURNALISTS ENCOUNTERS HELD IN NEW DELHI, LONDON

Media interest in the Fourth World Conference on Women (FWCW) was enhanced at two recent Journalists Encounters, organized by DPI in cooperation with the Conference secretariat, at which media representatives were briefed on key issues before the Beijing Conference.

The first Encounter, held in New Delhi on 2 June in cooperation with the Women's Feature Service and the India International Centre, was addressed by Mrs. Gertrude Mongella, Secretary-General of the Conference; Dr. Sarala Gopalan, Department of Women and Child Development, Ministry of Human Resources and Development, India; Mrs. Patricia Licuanan, Chairperson, Commission on the Status of Women; Ms. Supatra Masdit, Convenor, NGO Forum on Women; and Professor Muhammad Yunus, Managing Director, the Grameen Bank. Mian Qadrud-Din, Director, Promotion and Public Services Division, DPI, moderated.

The meeting drew nearly 150 participants, including media representatives from the Asia and the Pacific region and eight journalists from developing countries sponsored by DPI. In addition, more than 300 NGOs were briefed in an afternoon session.

UNIC New Delhi contributed to the success of the Encounter by producing and distributing invitations, preparing a press kit, helping with logistical arrangements, setting up a number of briefings and interviews for Mrs. Mongella and responding to media queries.

A second Journalists Encounter, cosponsored by the Government of the United Kingdom, was held in London on 7 June. Participants included: Mrs. Mongella; Mrs. Irene Freudenschuss-Reichl, Deputy Chair, Commission on the Status of Women; and Idriss Jazairy and Baroness Shirley Williams, members of the FWCW Advisory Group. UNIC London Director Alexander Borg Olivier moderated the discussion. Dr. Aleya Hammad, WHO, and Ms. Joann Vanek, UN Statistical Division, served as resource persons.

The Encounter was attended by media representatives from the European media and United Kingdom-based international media. In addition, DPI sponsored 12 journalists from Europe, Africa, Asia and the Caribbean to attend the briefing. The Encounter received good media coverage, including a prominent article in The Guardian and an Associated Press report that quoted Mrs. Mongella: "It's time to devote energy to the real issues and not peripheral issues", and "We have to change the world. This Conference may determine what the situation of women will be in the next century."

The afternoon NGO briefing, attended by more than 200 NGOs, was addressed by Ms. Freudenschuss-Reichl, Mr. Jazairy and Ms. Vanek. Mrs. Angela Browning, M.P., Government Co-Chair, Women's National Commission, delivered a welcoming address and Ms. Maureen Rooney, also Co-Chair of the Women's National Commission, moderated a question-and-answer period. Ms. Kristin Timothy, FWCW Coordinator, served as resource person.

UNIC London, in addition to participating in the Encounter, arranged meetings for Mrs. Mongella with Members of Parliament, handled logistical arrangements and set up media interviews.

WOMEN IN POLITICS

The Feminist Press, with the cooperation of DPI, is producing a new book entitled A Rising Public Voice: Women in Politics Worldwide. The book includes feature articles by and about political women from all regions of the world and is due in the fall.

LAND-MINE PROBLEM WORSENS

The UN estimates that, in addition to more than 100 million land-mines already planted in 64 countries, between 2 and 5 million more are laid and some 10,000 noncombatants die each year (A/49/357; Add 1, 2). The International Committee of the Red Cross reports that, each month, land-mines kill more than 800 people and maim thousands more.

Problems associated with land-mines have become so severe that the UN Department of Humanitarian Affairs (DHA) has been designated as the system-wide focal point for mine clearance and land-mine related activities. In addition, the General Assembly, in 1994, called for an international meeting to improve coordination of assistance in mine clearance, heighten awareness of the issues posed by uncleared mines and generate the resources needed to expand UN efforts to eradicate the problem (resolution 49/215). Accordingly, DHA has organized an International Meeting on Mine Clearance to take place in Geneva from 5 to 7 July. Member States, land-mine experts, and intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations will discuss technical and financial issues involved in land-mine clearance programmes. The meeting will include panel discussions on the technical aspects of mine clearance and a High-level segment providing affected countries with a forum to discuss their needs. Participants will also have the opportunity to make contributions to the Voluntary Trust Fund for mine clearance programmes, established by Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali in 1994. In addition, an exhibit on mine-related activities will be held at the Palais des Nations.

Also in connection with the meeting, H.E. Johann Molander, Chairman of the Group of Governmental Experts preparing the Review Conference of States Parties to the 1980 Convention on Certain Inhumane Conventional Weapons, will make a presentation focusing on the work of the Group Of Governmental Experts to revise Protocol II of the Convention dealing with land-mines. Proliferation of land-mines will be discussed in Vienna at the Review Conference from 25 September to 13 October 1995.

While the UN encourages States to establish national programmes for mine clearance and all related activities, many countries struggling to rebuild themselves after a period of conflict need extensive international assistance to do so. To date, the UN has established comprehensive programmes in Afghanistan, Cambodia and Mozambique and is about to implement one in Angola. It is estimated that in 1995, these programmes alone will require $65-$70 million in funds. To date, only $2.3 million has been contributed to the Trust Fund.

NGOs have assisted fund-raising efforts by helping to increase international awareness of the intense human suffering caused by uncleared land-mines. The Secretary-General underscored the importance of their work in his 2 June statement sent to the Phnom Penh Conference entitled "The Human and Socio-Economic Impact of Land-mines: Towards an International Ban", in which he called NGOs "an essential element of the international effort to stop the proliferation of land-mines, and to rid the world of the scourge of these agents of death and destruction". The Phnom Penh Conference was the first of its kind to be held in a country badly affected by land-mines, allowing participants to witness land-mine devastation at first hand.

(Press releases SG/SM/5644 and IHA/561; Document SG/CONF.7/1).

Department of Humanitarian Affairs:

Established in March 1992 by the General Assembly (resolution 46/182), DHA coordinates UN emergency humanitarian assistance. Under-Secretary-General Peter Hansen, heads the Department.

Mine Clearance and Policy Unit:

Created by DHA in 1994, this Unit develops mine clearance policy and coordinates UN system activities in mine action, including the creation of new programmes.

CCW:

The 1980 Convention on Certain Inhumane Conventional Weapons (CCW) contains the only provisions in international humanitarian law that directly address land-mine use. For details see the UN Treaty Series Volume 1342; the 1980 UN Yearbook, page 76; and The Scourge of Land Mines (DPI/1415).

UN50 AND UNICs

> "We are the custodians of the dream of global cooperation. We will not let it perish. As long as people seek national identities; as long as people seek protection from aggression; and as long as people yearn for a better world for their children, the United Nations will endure, and it will succeed."
>
> -- Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali

The number of commemorative activities for the UN Fiftieth Anniversary initiated by UN Information Centres is on the rise. Local communities, in particular, schools and universities, have supported UNIC projects enthusiastically. In May, UNIC Lisbon joined the Madeira region in dedicating its annual school athletic games, involving 5,000 children, to UN50. One segment featured a dramatic stadium event where more than 800 students, dressed in blue and white and waving UN flags, formed the letters "ONU".

Sports were also the focus of UNIC Lima and UNIS Geneva events. The UN50th Anniversary/Summer 1995 competition was organized by UNDP and promoted to the press by UNIC Lima. Twelve teams representing most of the UN agencies based in Peru took part in the March soccer and volleyball competition. The event received excellent media coverage.

UNIS Geneva helped organize a "Race for Solidarity" under the auspices of the UN Office at Geneva and the Office of the Mayor. In addition, UNIC Bonn reports that two bicyclists who left Moscow en route to San Francisco to commemorate the Fiftieth Anniversary have made their way to Germany.

Centres have also been active in organizing or participating in colloquia in honour of UN50. UNIC Washington co-hosted a two-day symposium with Georgetown University entitled "UN Issues for the Next Half-Century". UNIC Mexico co-organized a four-day colloquium with the UN50 National Committee and the Universidad Autonoma de Mexico entitled "The Fiftieth Anniversary of the UN and the Challenges Facing Mexico Today". In addition, UNIC Sana'a has reached agreement with Sana'a University to offer students a special research course on UN activities.

In Europe, UNIC Athens celebrated UN50 in May by participating in a four-day International Conference on Political, Economic and Social Racism. The conference was organized by the University of Macedonia, Aristotle University of Thessaloniki and Democritus University of Thrace. In Italy, the UNIC Rome Director delivered the Secretary-General's message to the Vatican University's commemoration marking 50 years of the UN's "Service to Humanity".

UNIC Madrid participated in two May events organized by the UN50 National Committee: "The United Nations Fiftieth Anniversary Congress", which examined the UN's role and possible Charter revision; and a seminar on "50 Years of the United Nations" attended by senior officials. UNIC Port of Spain is planning a Model UN to coincide with the UN50 October Commemorative Session in New York. In addition, UNIC Dar es Salaam organized a Model UN with secondary schools in Zanzibar and the Mainland.

In the CIS region, the UN Office in Belarus reports that Soviet Belarussia recently published an interview with the UN Resident Representative on UN50 and UNO activities. The UN Office in Kazakstan and the UN Division of the Ministry for Foreign Affairs have completed two television programmes on UN activities around the world.

OTHER UNIC ACTIVITIES

Multi-media is the wave of the future and UNICs are riding it. UNIC Lisbon reports that its new electronic bulletin board is fully operational, 24 hours a day, in English and Portuguese. UNIC Mexico has an electronic library in UNEPNET and is organizing a gopher in Spanish within RED UNAM, the Mexican National University. The Centre also has launched a five-minute, colour presentation of the UN system on diskette, the first in its multi-media series. The electronic media unit of UNIS Geneva is co-producing a film project on child labour with ILO.

Several UNICs commemorated the International Day of Families on 15 May. UNIC Santa Fé de Bogotá organized an event at the Presidential Palace with First Lady Jacquin Strouss de Samper. Media coverage was good; Radio Cadena Nacional broadcast an interview with the UNIC Director. UNIC Buenos Aires organized a theatrical presentation under the theme "Tolerance Begins in the Family", which was led by well-known actress Luisina Brando.

UNICs continue to conduct active media outreach. UNIC Lima recently held a press conference at the closing of a the UNDP/UNESCO project on Cultural, Urban and Environmental Heritage, which generated several stories in the print media. Journalists joined UNIC Panama in a forum on "Freedom of the Press" held at Paraninfo University in observance of World Press Freedom Day, 3 May.

UNICs also continue to reach out to the public through translation of UN documents into local languages. UNIC Lagos, having translated the UN Charter into three main local languages — Yoruba, Hausa and Igbo — scheduled a launch to coincide with the 26 June date of the signing of the UN Charter in San Francisco. UNIC Maseru translated the FWCW brochure into Sesotho, in preparation for the Beijing Conference.

Continuing the tradition of newsletters and special publications, UNIC Ouagadougou released the April edition of its French-language newsletter, ONU Flash. At the initiative of UNIC Sydney, the Australian Parliament has dedicated the student magazine Two Way Street to the work of the UN.

UNIC Santa Fé de Bogotá held an international fashion show in honour of the Fifteth Anniversary of the UN.

In the area of peace-keeping information, UNIC Madrid co-organized, with the Spanish National Police Academy, a third seminar for police officers destined for UN peace-keeping service.

USE OF THE UN LOGO

In response to a number of inquiries, ICS recently provided UNICs with a reminder on the proper use of the UN logo. Shown here is the way non-UN organizations can adapt the logo for use in information materials in support of the UN. The words "United Nations" or "UN" set above the logo and "We Believe" set below, makes it clear that no official use of the emblem is involved and that the information product carrying the modified logo was produced not by the UN itself but by an NGO.

DPI REPORTS ON CRIME CONGRESS

Media coverage of the Ninth UN Congress for the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders, held in Cairo from 29 April to 8 May, was extensive and positive, according to Axel Wuestenhagen, Director of UNIS Vienna, who served as DPI spokesman for the Conference. Headlines appeared in hundreds of publications and a dozen interviews were conducted by major wire services, newspapers and broadcast media with UN officials, such as UNOV Director-General Giorgio Giacomelli. DPI backgrounders produced for the Congress were quoted extensively, notably in l'Humanité, La Repubblicca, Al Ahram, Japan Times, a front-page article in The Christian Science Monitor and a verbatim reprinting in El Proceso, Mexico's leading news magazine. An editorial in The Times of London concluded that "[international] crime is on the move; the UN is right to keep prodding governments to match the pace". A press kit, poster, T-shirts and an updated handbook explaining the UN crime prevention system were distributed at the Cairo Congress.

TRIBUNAL ELECTED FOR RWANDA

The International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda was established by the Security Council on 8 November 1994 (resolution 955) to prosecute persons responsible for genocide and other serious violations of international humanitarian law committed in the course of 1994. The Tribunal's headquarters will be located in Arusha, Tanzania.

The General Assembly, in May 1995, elected the following six judges for a four-year term: Laity Kama, Senegal; T.H. Khan, Bangladesh; Ms. Navanethem Pillay, South Africa; Yakov A. Ostrovsky, Russian Federation; William H. Sekule, United Republic of Tanzania; and Lennart Aspegren, Sweden.

The Tribunal has two trial chambers, each comprised of three judges; a five-judge Appeals Chamber, appointed by the President of the Tribunal; a Prosecutor, who will be responsible for investigating and prosecuting violations of international law and a registry that will be responsible for administering and servicing the Tribunal (Press releases GA/884-886; Documents A/49/893-894).

POPE SUPPORTS CONFERENCE ON WOMEN

At a meeting with Conference Secretary-General Mrs. Gertrude Mongella at the Vatican on 26 May, Pope John Paul II pledged his support for the upcoming Fourth World Conference on Women, stating that the Holy See delegation would be headed by a woman.

In an eight-page letter regarding the Holy See's position, the Pope recalled that solutions to issues before the Conference should be based on recognition of the inherent inalienable dignity of women and the importance of women's presence and participation in all aspects of life.

ESCWA SETS UP NEW COMMITTEES

The Economic and Social Commission for Western Asia (ESCWA) concluded its 22-25 May session in Beirut by calling for new energy and water committees to coordinate relevant regional efforts and develop priorities. Ms. Vera Azar, Information Officer, UNIS Amman, assisted by Nabil Abu-Dargham, Information Assistant, UNIC Beirut, coordinated media outreach for the secretariat. ESCWA also published its 1994 Survey of Economic and Social Development, which attributed the region's overall economic decline mainly to the Gulf States' economic recession (Press releases ESCWA/117-119).

CALL FOR INCREASED TCDC FINANCING

The High-level Committee on the Review of Technical Cooperation Among Developing Countries (TCDC), meeting at Headquarters from 30 May to 2 June, called on governments, UN organizations and other public and private institutions in developed countries to incorporate new directions for technical cooperation into their programmes, increase their budgets for TCDC and identify new financing arrangements to make the changes possible. UNDP Administrator Gustave Speth proposed that these new strategic initiatives focus on trade and investment, debt, the environment, poverty alleviation, macro-economic policy coordination and aid management (Press releases TCDC/95-101 and Documents TCDC/9/L.1-7).

CONSENSUS ELUDES DISARMAMENT COMMISION

The Disarmament Commission, meeting in New York from 15 to 30 May, was unable to reach agreement on guidelines for nuclear disarmament and a review of the 1990s as the Third Disarmament Decade. Despite the hope expressed by some delegations that the climate of cooperation and understanding regarding extension of the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons would prevail, the Commission failed to reach consensus on nuclear disarmament. They did, however, agree on a structure for, and the scope of, international arms transfers guidelines (Press release DC/2518).

UN POPULATION AWARD

The Inter-African Committee on Traditional Practices Affecting the Health of Women and Children (IAC) and Dr. Halfdan Mahler, Secretary-General of the International Planned Parenthood Federation (IPPF), are joint winners of the 1995 UN Population Award, including payment of $12,500 each. The awards were made on 5 June at Headquarters.

IAC, an Ethiopia-based group, was chosen for its efforts to create the social, cultural and public health conditions that allow women to exercise their reproductive rights.

Dr. Mahler, Secretary-General of IPPF since 1989, was chosen for his strong leadership in the areas of reproductive health, family planning and global population issues. He was also Director-General of WHO from 1973-1988 (Press release POP/593).

INTERNATIONAL DAY OF COOPERATIVES

In 1992, the General Assembly proclaimed the first Saturday of July 1995 to be International Day of Cooperatives (resolution 47/60). On 23 December 1994, recognizing cooperatives as indispensable factors in economic and social development, the Assembly invited organizations to commemorate this day annually (resolution 49/155). UNICs were sent extensive background information and the Secretary-General's statement to help in organizing observances.

WORLD POPULATION DAY

In 1990, the General Assembly officially recognized World Population Day, 11 July, as a vehicle to build awareness of population issues and their impact on development and environment (resolution 45/216). UNFPA has distributed to all UNICs and UNDP field offices information materials including a poster, a brochure (A/E/F/S), a population issues briefing kit (A/E/F/S) and a video documentary film based on the report The State of the World Population 1995 (E/F/S). On 11 July in London, UNFPA Executive Director Dr. Nafis Sadik will launch the 1995 report, which focuses on reproductive rights and empowerment of women.

INTERNATIONAL DAY OF THE WORLD'S INDIGENOUS PEOPLE

The General Assembly decided in 1994 that this International Day would be observed on 9 August for the duration of the International Decade of the World's Indigenous People (resolution 49/214). DPI's Human Rights and Development Section is sending UNICs a backgrounder on indigenous women (DPI/1361).

ANNOUNCEMENTS

UN at the Turn of the Century: Global Issues, Global Actors, Global Responsibility

The 48th Annual DPI/NGO Conference, scheduled at Headquarters from 18-20 September, will examine progress made by the international community in the wake of recent UN conferences on various aspects of human and sustainable development and explore strategies for the future. UNICs were sent programme information and registration materials. Queries should be directed to the NGO Section, Tel. 212-963-7236 and Fax 212-963-2819.

World Economic and Social Survey 1995

The UN Department for Economic and Social Information and Policy Analysis (DESIPA) will release its annual World Economic and Social Survey 1995 in July at the High-level segment of the Economic and Social Council session. The Survey forecasts worldwide, regional and national economic growth and analyses key economic and social policy issues. Among this year's findings are that world economic growth is continuing at a sustainable 3 per cent and that oil prices are likely to remain stable through the year 2010 (E/1995/50;E/F/S).

The United Nations: The Fiftieth Anniversary Photo Set

Centres have been sent a catalogue of photos available from the DPI Photo Library. UNICs may order transparencies and reproduce the prints locally, in order to avoid inevitable delays at Headquarters due to the high volume of requests.

UN Documents

Readers may obtain UN documents electronically from the UNDP Gopher at gopher.undp.org or from the UN Home Page at http://www.un.org. Sales publications are not available on the Internet.
